But in the typical salt. other hand, "single irrigation" also possesses inctory—or more properly speaking, salt-gar-disadvantages. In this system the salt-bed is pool 16th Oct, and Singapore 2nd Dec., had den—of the Coromandel Coast, there are but irrigated to a depth of about an inch with satu. strong NeN.E. and N.E. winds and heavy sea fow buildings, and those of the most rough- | rated brine, which is evaporated until a layer of hewn kind, and no machiners whatever; unless; Balt orystals has formed. These are then raked indeed, the rudely-constructed hand-pumps and up with wooden scrapers, and the bed irrigated the primitive leverage used for opening the with a fresh charge of brine. These constant sluices can be classed as such. The vest ex- -Indian Daily News. panse devoted to salt-oulture is then literally covered with black dots of humanity; so much so as to simost hide the orystallized salt which; glistening beneath the sun's florce rays, lies in strate in the beds, or is piled in heaps along the pathway.

The Coromandel Coast possesses, in a greater or less degree, all the natural advantages with regard to soil, levels, climate, and brine supply essential to the manufacture of salt by solur evaporation. Consequently, the whole length of the coast is dotted with salt-factories and depots. The factory from which I am just now writing being of fairly large dimensions, and favourably situated as to its brine supply, may be taken as an illustration of the whole; for though there are different systems of salt-oulture in vogue at different factories, they vary only in minor de-SAILING RACE-FOR ALL OPEN BOATS-SAY tails, the bread principles being the same in Incidentally, therefore, and in so far only as the outturn of duty-payable salt is likely to be affected, the Salt Revenue Department has been obliged to furbish up its knowledge of Botany and Natural History to point out the species of vegotation must objectionable on salt sites; the varieties of trees to be cultivated with advantage; the vermin that require extermination, and the shrubs that urgantly need to be "grubbed up"not merely scotched, but killed. Some attention has also been devoted to crustsceams of sorts, partionlarly to the land-crab who has a babit of tunnelling from the subscil brine-level to the surface and riddling the pathways of the salterns with burrows. One variety—the gelasimus annulipes has caused the authorities some anxiety.
